

Work-Based Learning

Learning in the workplace is something you may want to do after you finish school.

You can do this through:

- » Entry to employment
- » Programme led pathways
- » Apprenticeships

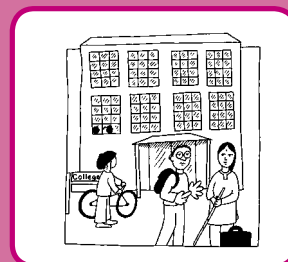

Some may need good qualifications from your school or college. Some require you to pass an assessment.

Your Personal Adviser can help decide which is best for you.

You may also spend time at a training centre or college.

You may be in a work place learning to do a job.

You will work towards a qualification.

You will be able to improve your skills in subjects like IT.
